E I F I

The European Industrial Fasteners Institute (EIFI) was conceived in 1977 through the amalgamation of those individual European Fasteners Associations, which existed at that time.

These organisations had successfully, but separately, represented bolts, nuts, socket screws, woodscrews, machine screws and self-tapping screws manufacturers for a number of years.

It was believed that the time was right to merge these organisations into one body which would unite the industry and provide a strong, solid organisation for the European Fastener Industry.

E I F I

EIFI is the European organisation representing fastener manufacturers. It provides an important forum for those forward looking companies who wish to further their interests, not only throughout Europe, but world-wide. It gives member companies the opportunity to meet their counterparts throughout Europe, to discuss mutual concerns, and to join with them in promoting the European fastener industry.

Aims and Objectives

The Institute is concerned with those companies who are involved in the production of bolts, nuts, screws and rivets of both ferrous and non-ferrous metals and other industrial fasteners.

The Institute looks after and furthers the joint economic, professional, technical and scientific interests of its members including:

- Exchanges of practical experience and information.
- The preparation of aids to decision-making.
- The representation of the interests of the European fasteners industry vis-à-vis authorities, public bodies and other organisations including buyers and suppliers.
- The encouragement of studies and research work and collaboration with scientific institutes.
- The co-ordination of European activities in the technical field and co-operation in the field of international standardisation.
